

Pivot Behavioral Health Constructive Worry

Instructions: Take about 15 minutes (preferably around 2 hours before bed) and start by writing down a concern you are having, one that has the greatest chance of keeping you awake at bedtime. Under solutions, think of the next steps you might take to fix the problem. This does not need to be the final solution; problem solving requires taking steps, and you will be doing this exercise again tomorrow until you finally get the best solution. Here are some helpful things to consider.

- If you know how to fix the problem completely, write that.
- If you decide that this isn't really a big problem, and you will deal with it when the time comes, write that.
- If you decide that you don't know what to do about it and perhaps need to ask someone to help, write that.
- If you decide that it is a problem, but there doesn't seem to be a good solution and you may have to live with it, then write that. Maybe there will be a clue for how to fix it down the road.
